Hiring Manager

April 4, 2012

Dear Sir or Madam,

With 12 years of experience, I am at ease managing a diverse network of systems and associated services. Although my most recent work experience is decidedly web-centered, I believe that my unique capabilities support an efficient transition into almost any business context.

Throughout my career, I have worked in relatively small shops with a high degree of responsibility as the sole system administrator; necessitating a great deal of versatility, in addition to fully effective interpersonal, communication and organizational skills. Consequently, I am also comfortable working with all levels of staff, regardless of technical proficiency.

I am passionate about solving problems, particularly those well suited to automation. I enjoy digging into a difficult technical challenge, recognizing that it often requires learning a new skill, concept or technique, and ultimately results in helping someone in a tangible way.

Sincerely,

Martin Walsh
